

FY23 Performance Review

Amundson, Kyle

1. How has this person progressed over the last 12 months?

Explain how this growth has helped this person achieve their goals and/or positively impacted their performance. Refer to this person's feedback, self-reflection, and goals in the profile to the right. This will give you a more holistic view of their performance over the last 12 months and make the evaluation easier for you to complete.

Kyle had three primary goals for the year:

- a. Manage the day-to-day strategy of the email channel and grow to oversee the responsibility with limited need for direction.
- b. Drive personalization on Email forward, goaled to exceed 50% Demand by Q4 from non-batch and blast sends and increase triggers >20% of email Demand
- c. Gain confidence and aptitude in her analytical capacity (conduct weekly CRM analysis without need for review; run monthly forecasting; be subject matter expert, able to gain deep insights into email program)

All three of these goals were met or exceeded during the year. Kyle started mid-peak 2022 and came into her own in 2023. By peak, she was excelling at managing the day-to-day email process. She kept the trains running on time and brought a strong strategic point of view of the content. When SLT gave the feedback entering peak there was a need for a deeper, weekly dive into email, she managed the process once in place with need for direction.

More importantly, after setting a goal to enhance her analytical skills, she steadily increased her understanding and confidence at both core KPIs to manage the business and deeper, more complex analysis. By peak, she was finding interesting and actionable insights to enhance the email program. For example she found that targeted offers were peaking at shut down and introduced a standard treatment to shut each offer down creating enhanced results.

2. What was this person's impact on team and department and organizational goals over the last 12 months?

Describe the specific impact they had and behaviors they exhibited.

She also played a critical role in achieving the goal of enhancing personalization, primarily through triggers but also in increasing the early segmentation structures on email. She was the primary point of contact for the automations vendor and built out the enhanced Tier-one sale strategy and managed the ongoing process to ensure it was being accurately followed during sales. Triggers grew to ~30% of email business and personalized demand exceeded 50%.

3. What blockers or challenges did this person experience over the last 12 months that impacted their ability to achieve goals or meet expectations?

Describe blockers that they managed to overcome as well as those they did not and note any obstacles that were outside of their control.

The company in general and the email program in particular requires a high burden of manual work. This can put pressure on the time and energy to think beyond the day to day. Kyle did an excellent job of overcoming blockers and maintaining a positive attitude and the integrity of the email program. As she continues to advance in her role, I would like to see her create more automated processes, lower lift functionality and open up the time to focus to make major strategic enhancements. I'm confident in Kyle's ability to drive major breakthroughs to the email functionality but it is important to elevate from the day to day requirements

4. What are 2-3 skills or competencies you'd like them to focus on for further development?

The skills or competencies should be challenging but within reach for the employee. Describe skills that will add to this person's ability to make an impact in the organization. Be sure to highlight ways that these skills will capitalize on this person's strengths and personal career interests.

I would like to see Kyle take two development opportunities. 1. To work on surfacing and implementing major enhancements to the email program. She is very good at keep the trains running on time. She has a lot of strategic capacity and should lean into the muscle of building major strategic shifts.

2. I would like to see Kyle flex her leadership muscles in the organization by leading more initiatives and inspiring others. She has opportunity to develop her capacity to look at the bigger picture and inspire team members to drive meaningful change.
